

Are you eligible for Special Enrollment?

Most people sign up for health care coverage during the Open Enrollment Period. The most recent Open Enrollment Period ended on December 15, 2018.

If you have a “qualifying life event,” you may be eligible for a Special Enrollment Period. Some of the reasons* you may qualify for Special Enrollment are:

- You lose your coverage due to events like a job change or divorce.
- The size of your family changes because of a marriage, birth, adoption, divorce, or death.
- You have a change in income or household status that affects whether you get a premium tax credit.
- You move to a new ZIP Code and can choose from different health plans.
- You or a family member have a change in citizenship or immigration status.
- You lose or are denied Medicaid or Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP) coverage.

You must apply within 60 days before or after the qualifying life event.

If you are submitting an application, you will need to provide proof of your qualifying event.

Members of federally recognized Native American tribes or Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA) Corporation shareholders can enroll in an Exchange health plan any time and can change plans as often as once a month.

* The list of qualifying events above is not a complete list. Please call the number below if you have questions about whether or not you may qualify.
